Beal Bank Donates Computers to DISD

Two hundred computers will help low- to moderate-income students excel

Dallas — Building upon its efforts to promote academic excellence, Beal Bank has donated approximately 200 personal computers to the Dallas Independent School District (DISD). DISD representatives picked up the computers from Beal Bank headquarters on Thursday, March 24, 2011, with the specification that the computers will be used in schools in low- and moderate-income neighborhoods.

“At Beal Bank, we understand that technology is important not only to business but also to making people’s lives better. It is essential that students in today’s world have access to modern technology to maximize their academic efforts, whether in the sciences or the arts. By donating these computers, we hope to help prepare DISD students for a better future and to help them take those all-important first steps toward accomplishing great things,” said Andy Beal, President and CEO of Beal Bank.

Beal Bank’s donation of the computers continues its long tradition of supporting academic excellence, especially in science and mathematics. Beal Bank is also the title sponsor for the annual Beal Bank Dallas Regional Science and Engineering Fair, which was held on February 26 this year.
